Cresa expanded its presence in the Bay Area with its newest office, Cresa East Bay, at 555 12th St. in Oakland, CA.

Cresa recently merged with the local tenant representation firm AEGIS Realty Partners. Managing Principals Matt Elmquist and Scott Stone, former principals at AEGIS, will lead the new group.

“Cresa has been expanding services in the local area, and our new office in East Bay is a logical extension for us,” said Craig Zodikoff, managing principal, Cresa San Francisco. “Matt and Scott are highly respected, top producers who share our tenant advocacy philosophy and are very compatible with our corporate culture. By joining forces, we become a stronger player in the East Bay and throughout the region; we also gain from their complementary capabilities in such disciplines as corporate dispositions and investment sales.”

Elmquist and Stone have more than three decades of combined commercial real estate experience. The duo has worked with Amyris, Biotime, Children’s Hospital in Oakland, GT Nexus, Oncologic, Onyx Pharmaceuticals and Zogenix.

The Cresa East Bay office will work closely with Cresa's San Francisco, San Jose and Palo Alto offices to expand the firm's focus in the Bay Area.

Cresa, is an international corporate real estate advisory firm that specializes in representing tenants and delivery of fully integrated real estate services. Cresa has more than 55 offices. Through its partnership with Savills, Cresa covers more than 255 locations in 40 countries.
