

Christopher Strailman

Senior Vice President, Project Management Boston

Professional Experience

Chris brings to Cresa a combination of construction, project management, and architectural experience. He has successfully managed both new construction and renovation projects for clients ranging from small businesses to international Fortune 500 companies. Chris has advanced knowledge of various methodologies and technologies, strong communication skills, and a detailed-oriented approach, ensuring project goals are met and that clients are satisfied with the end results.

Education

Chris received his Master of Architecture from Illinois Institute of Technology in 2011.

Affiliations

Chris is a member of the Construction Management Association of America.

Personal Interests

Chris enjoys running and cycling and has completed the New York City marathon multiple times. He also enjoys working on his motorcycle and spending time riding to explore and see new places.

Contact

312.504.7481 mobile
cstrailman@cresa.com