

Eugene Ballantine

Manager, Finance and Research Chicago

Professional Experience

Eugene has been a part of Cresa's Chicago office for over five years, bringing his total commercial real estate experience to over nine years. In his role as Manager of Research and Finance, Eugene has been crucial to the development of Cresa's market knowledge and reporting capabilities, covering downtown and suburban office markets as well as Chicagoland's industrial market. Additionally, he has created Cresa's best in class market intelligence database, quarterly market reports, and forecasting/KPI tracking dashboards for various portfolio clients. In his financial role, he provides high-quality financial analyses to inform and support our clients' real estate decision making. Armed with exceptional analytical and organizational skills and an eye for details, he's a problem solver who constantly seeks to achieve better results.

Prior to joining Cresa, Eugene worked in Assets Services in Washington, D.C. In addition, Eugene holds a number of certifications in property management including BOMI International's RPA and IREM's CPM designations. He attended the University of St. Andrews in Scotland where he achieved a Masters of Arts in Classical Studies after attending the Hill School in Pottstown, PA.
