

Evan Hill

Manager, Sales Operations Chicago

Professional Experience

Evan serves as Manager of Sales Operations for Cresa, where he helps lead broker recruiting efforts with a focus on market expansion and strategic growth. With a deep understanding of Cresa's platform and business, Evan manages the full recruitment cycle, developing targeted strategies, sourcing top talent, and helping brokers seamlessly integrate into the firm.

In addition to recruiting, Evan plays a key role in sales enablement and business development, supporting brokers in identifying pursuits, building pitches, and winning new business. He also assists with Chicago market research efforts, contributing insights that help inform client strategy and support the team's broader understanding of local market trends. His role extends across both local and corporate operations, where he contributes to broker training programs and initiatives aimed at improving business development performance.

Through his collaborative, team-first approach, Evan helps strengthen Cresa's presence in key markets while ensuring brokers are equipped to deliver best-in-class service to their clients.
