

Bradley Metzger

Managing Principal Chicago

Professional Experience

Brad began his real estate career immediately after graduating from Indiana University's Kelley School of Business in 1985, joining Cresa as a Managing Principal in July of 2009. Since joining the firm he has helped oversee the growth of Cresa's Chicago Office.

Over his 30+ years of industry experience, Brad has secured and served as the Account Executive for various Fortune 500 companies. His long lasting relationships with his clients has created extensive industry expertise in both the consumer products and cable communications sectors. The real estate portfolios of his clients encompass all real estate asset types providing Brad with a diverse real estate background unique to the real estate industry.

Having worked overseas in a real estate capacity on behalf of Blockbuster Video in London, England, and through the oversight of global initiatives for clients, Brad also has extensive international experience. Overall, he and his team have won, lead and completed numerous projects in markets on a global basis.
