

Erik Carlson

Vice President
San Francisco

Professional Experience

With a real estate background heavily centered on strategic planning, Erik's exclusive focus on emerging technology, health technology, and life science companies has led to a unique advantage for his clients. An expert in creative and efficient growth, he takes into account company culture as it relates to recruiting/retention while understanding that financial flexibility/efficiency are essential to the success of a growing company.

Prior to embarking on his career in commercial real estate, Erik narrowed his academic focus to studying city planning earning his degree in Regional Development. On-site LEED training, Green buildings and Green technology, as well as sustainable future practices were the foundations of his education. Mastering growth cycles, growth patterns, market trends, and city development throughout his career has given Erik an extensive background in real estate decision making and strategic planning.
