

Blake Lacher

Managing Principal Capital Markets & Investment Banking

Professional Experience

Blake provides clients with capital markets advisory and solutions across North America. He is an expert in evaluating transaction solutions and structures against a client's financial/regulatory reporting, economic and operating objectives. Blake has more than 30 years of experience in international and cross border finance, asset finance, energy and infrastructure project finance and investment, leasing and other capital markets products. Having founded and run his own company, International Capital Advisors, for four years, Blake is a world-class strategist in providing consulting services for the funding and structuring of large-scale and complex critical projects.

Prior to joining Cresa, he led JLL's national Structured Capital team, which included seven separate business units that provided capital markets products and services.
