

Matthew Spachman

Senior Vice President
Kansas City, MO

Professional Experience

Matt Spachman is a Senior Vice President in the Kansas City office of Cresa. His real estate career began in 1994 representing clients in all facets of the commercial industry including Occupier Representation, Landlord Representation, Development, Investment Sales and Strategic Planning.

Matt has earned a reputation as a problem solver during his 23+ year tenure in the commercial real estate business. One of his greatest strengths is his ability to marshal resources and expertise to find cost-effective solutions that create long-term value for his clients. Focusing on determining his client's expectations and developing plans to exceed them through well-researched comprehensive solutions is the one key to his success. His result-oriented approach often requires the support of economic development organizations and the assembly and orchestration of highly skilled teams of professionals covering legal, financial, architectural, and construction disciplines.
