Professional Experience

Ellen works with a team of experienced professionals delivering advisory and transaction services to occupiers of real estate in the government, nonprofit, K12 and higher education sectors. The scope of services includes strategic real estate planning and advisory services, site selection, portfolio consolidation, build to suit acquisitions, asset dispositions, headquarter relocation and leasehold condominiums.

Ellen previously served as Executive Vice President and National Director at JLL, and led the organization's Non-Profit Practice Group. Prior to a merger with JLL Ellen was a Principal with The Staubach Company in the New York and Washington DC offices. She also led the Design and Construction Consulting Division for the Washington office and in 1995 founded the Non-Profit Practice Group for the company, working with organizations such as the Smithsonian, the District of Columbia, NPR and the Public Broadcasting System.

Ellen began her career with Boston Properties as a construction manager in the Washington, DC metropolitan area. She was responsible for both ground up construction and tenant fit-outs totaling more than 2 million square feet.
