

Blake St. Onge

Managing Principal Portland

Professional Experience

Connector, relationship builder and thought leader; the core of my corporate real estate practice, and frankly, who I am. I meet great people every single day. As principal and leader of the Cresa Portland office, I help entrepreneurs, small, medium and large businesses cut through the noise of the complex real estate landscape, distill into digestible content and provide honest, clear and concise counsel. I dive deep into the purpose, needs, desires of the business, then advise on the best real estate strategies to match the objectives.

A native Oregonian, my professional career started in Dallas, TX and has taken me to over 80 cities across the country representing the real estate needs of my clients. After spending more than a decade with one of the most well-respected CRE advisory firms, I decided to take on a leadership role with Cresa Portland.

"Blake played a KEY role in helping us negotiate the purchase of our building (3.5M+ transaction) that was super complex. More than once it appeared the deal was dead and Blake helped us through it all, working nights and weekends when necessary. I gotta say that I am glad to be 'just a coffee roaster' and felt fortunate to have such an experienced professional walking us through the process. He's also helped us find and negotiate 3 retail locations. His expertise has allowed us at Nossa Familia to do what we do best, knowing we had a super strong partner to guide us through the complexity of real estate transactions."
