

John A. Macintyre

Principal, Broker

Professional Experience

As a Principal at Cresa Toronto, John provides strong leadership to the Strategic Real Estate Practice group. John provides strategic advice to private, public and institutional landowners on how to better manage, create value and optimize their real estate assets. His strong background in strategic real estate in both the public and private sector allows him to address client needs in a distinctive and practical manner that yields excellent strategic results. John's previous public-sector leadership roles including his six years as Senior Vice President of Build Toronto give him an excellent analytical framework to understand and manage the unique challenges of managing a large real estate portfolio in a public organization.

John has led major redevelopment projects for a variety of clients in the Toronto and GTA Market area. John is particularly skilled in complex and integrated projects that include multiple stakeholders and the requirement for unique and innovative approaches to find the most appropriate real estate solution.
